Richmond, Albany and Berkeley Improvement

Immense Waterfront Project Making Headway

That the $25,000,000 (twenty-five millions) waterfront improvement for Berkeley, Albany and Richmond is materializing, and that actual development work on the project will begin within a few weeks, is assured by government officials and capitalists interested in financing the project.

Complete plans and specifications have been adopted, and when the lease is perfected no time will be lost.

A group of eastern capitalists, backed by the U. S. government, will finance the enterprise.

The F. M. Smith interests, with Rufus P. Jennings as confidential advisor, are at the head of this gigantic industrial project.

Two years ago Smith proposed to lease the Key Route basin, but was turned down by Mayor J. L. Davie. Berkeley, Albany and Richmond will now grow and prosper by the negative action of Oakland's mayor.

Uncle Sam Offers Boys Inducements

No Chance to "Hang On the Phone" in Richmond

The telephone service in Richmond is practically out of commission on account of the strike, which now appears to be a full fledged one.

The operators and linemen are holding out for a living wage and better working conditions, which will no doubt be granted within a short time, as business in some line is almost paralyzed on account of the strike.

There are 28 local operators employed in Richmond. Manager Calvert is trying to fill their places with one operator, which "can't be done."

However, emergency calls are answered for physicians and fire alarms.

It is said that the enforced elimination of the telephone will cause many to discard the service entirely, as some patrons find they can do with out the phone nicely.

In the meantime the girls are picketing headquarters on Third street, and have the sympathy of the public, which is a good indication that higher wages, and better conditions will follow.

An Opportunity to See World and Go to School

Positions in the American merchant marine at good salaries await all Americans with mechanical experience who are willing to study for one month.

Men who complete the Iris course and who apply themselves on being graduated to deep water vessels are assured rapid promotion.

Men who want to enter the government's free marine engineering school may do so by applying at 120 Market street, San Francisco in person or by writing to Captain Saunders at that address.

The need for seamen, firemen and stewards is becoming more acute daily and Americans between 18 and 35 years of age are urged to volunteer at once for the six weeks course aboard the merchant marine training ship Iris, which is stationed on the Pacific coast.

Five hundred men are needed for the Iris at once. Men are paid at the rate of $30 a month while in training. On winning regular assignment they are given satisfactory remuneration. None but Americans are accepted at either the free marine engineering school or for the Iris training.

Those wishing to enroll for sea training and subsequent service on the seven seas are urged to apply at the drug stores in their communities officially designated as enrolling stations or by writing to Henry Avila, room 323, No. 369 Pine street, San Francisco.

AMERICANS KILL FIFTY VILLISTAS

Forces Recross Border witn Prisoners After Chasing Bandits 35 Miles; Men Are Saddle Weary

El Paso, Tex.—American troops that participated in the punitive expedition against the Villa rebels in and near Juarez Sunday night and Monday were billeted in barracks and camps on the American side Monday night and were asleep before dark after twenty-four hours of campaigning.

As a rear guard to the cavalry, artillery and engineers' columns which wound over the mesa from the river late Monday, seven ragged, high-hatted Mexican prisoners were herded toward the Fort Bliss stockade by a detachment of the Fifth Cavalry, while another cavalry detachment drove a herd of 100 Mexican horses and ponies captured from the Villa forces to the remount station.

While no official report of the cavalry operations have yet been prepared for Brigadier General James B. Erwin and Major General Cabell, it was unofficially stated at Fort Bliss that approximately fifty Villa followers were killed and prisoners, horses and mules captured.

One American of the Seventh Cavalry, Corporal Chigas, was shot through the lung by a Mexican rebel on the south bank of the river.

After crossing during the night, the cavalry column, supported by a battalion of the Eighty-second Artillery, advanced, and at daybreak started scouting over the low, marshy fields in the elbow of the Rio Grande south of Ysleta, Tex.

Guarding the seven prisoners before reaching the Villa camp, the cavalry was enabled to proceed, dismounted, to within a short distance of the adobe headquarters, when fighting was begun by the Americans standing in water up to their knees, according to cavalry officers.

Four Villa men were killed in the first assault, and the entire force, numbering approximately 200 men, mounted and escaped toward the southwest, with the cavalry troops in pursuit. Crossing the plains and reaching the mesa land, the rebels scattered into small bands, and Colonel James J. Hornbrook's Fifth Cavalry pursued one band, which continued toward the southwest for a distance of thirty-five miles before turning toward the river.

In the meantime Colonel Tompkins' Seventh Cavalry horse, in temporary command of Colonel Howard R. Hikock, deployed to the southeast and pursued another band of the Villa men. During this pursuit troops A and C of the Seventh Cavalry executed a mounted pistol charge from the saddle and killed a number of the rebels. In the meantime the artillery placed shrapnel shells directly over the heads of the fleeing Villa forces and many were killed.

After the two cavalry forces had pursued the rebels over more than thirty square miles, they formed a junction and returned to the American side of the river, accompanied by the artillery and Eighth Engineers, who threw a pontoon bridge across the river.

The cavalry, artillery and engineers presented a tired, soiled and travel-stained appearance when they marched over the mesa to Fort Bliss Monday night. The heavy cavalry horses had found difficulty in keeping up the speed set by the wiry little Mexican cow pony. The men sat saddle weary on their mounts. Many had souvenirs of the Villa pursuit.

The colored rioters had possession of numerous revolvers and kept up an incessant fusillade, while the whites for the most part, according to reports, threw bottles and bricks.

S. F. PLANS TO GET NEXT PARTY SESSION

Citizens of Metropolis of Pacific Coast Feel They Are Entitled to Republican Convention

San Francisco.—With the sounding of the slogan, "Hiram Johnson for President of the United States," which has stirred the atmosphere of the country from the Pacific to the Atlantic, came the wafting of a stirring inspiration to San Francisco June 13.

Let California's chosen son be nominated for the highest office to which an American citizen can aspire at a convention to be assembled in San Francisco; let him go forth as the standard bearer of his party to make the victory campaign with the cheers and Godspeeds of his own home town ringing in his ears.

In the past San Francisco has longed for the honor of playing host in her own hospitable way to one of the big quadrennial political gatherings, but fates had never been propitious enough to warrant a master effort to bring it about.

But now things are different. Since the election of 1916 when California leaped suddenly into prominence as a political factor among the states she has maintained the rank thus acquired and has even progressed farther toward the foremost rank.

With the raising of the banner of Hiram Johnson for president what more logical than that she should be honored by the selection of her metropolis as the place for the big convention? So reasoned each San Franciscan as the inspiration hit him and took hold.

There is no city within the boundaries of the United States which is better prepared to entertain such a host as goes to make up such as is gathered together by one of the great national parties than San Francisco is at the present time. She has the commodious convention hall, the one big necessity for a convention, and she has the accommodations for the thousands that will throng to her gates. She can point with pride to the ease with which she cared for the multitude that attended the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in 1915 as proof of her ability.

In the magnificent Civic Auditorium facing the picturesque Civic Center there is accommodation for 12,000 persons; and what political convention can ask more? In addition to its main floor space the auditorium has numerous smaller halls of various dimensions which can be used separately as committee rooms—necessary adjuncts to all conventions—or can be opened into larger rooms to suit any purpose. Its central location is ideal and in this respect is much better than has been often provided in the past by Eastern cities for the conventions.

When it comes to accommodations for living and sleeping purposes San Francisco is indeed fortunate in her possessions. This is going to be her big asset in making her claim for the Republican convention of 1920. From every large city of the country is coming the cry of an overcrowded community. It is almost a gasp of suffocation brought about by war conditions of congestion. San Francisco, fortunately, has not been so afflicted and she can take care of all comers and take care of them well, too. There are more than 2000 hostelries and apartment houses of large size within the city. They are all modern and up-to-date in every respect, having been built since the fire of 1906.

The larger hotels are thirty-four in number, with accommodations ranging from 200 to 1000 or more guests each. All these hotels are bunched within an area contiguous to the Civic Center. Nor are the apartment houses scattered. Those which would be used by the city's visitors are in downtown sections or in neighborhoods close by. Surely no one will have to go without a comfortable bed or a hospitable roof, no matter how much of a multitude may attend the convention.

And as to living, the providing of edibles that go to make up the joy of life, even political life, San Francisco can again pat herself on the back and say: "Give me the convention and I'll show you whether I have forgotten how to do things." Good living always has been the watchword of San Francisco back to the earliest days and there is no record to show that her title was ever questioned. Her restaurants are many, her chefs are noted and her menus are unsurpassable.

What more are the requirements of a city for a political convention? These are the practical needs. Next are the attractions and of these San Francisco has so many and they are so well known that they do not require enumeration at this time. Enthusiasm for the coming of the big convention is based on the practical qualifications of the city to carry the thing through with a success that will be unprecedented in the history of political conventions in the United States.

Vanderburgh, San Francisco; vice-president, Dr. Gladys Morgan, San Diego. A secretary and treasurer will be elected later. Delegates went to Pasadena for the annual banquet.

Los Angeles.—Officers for the ensuing year were elected June 12 by delegates to the eighteenth annual convention here of the California Osteopathic Association. One of the important events on the program was a baby show in which several hundred entrants were judged by twelve visiting osteopaths. Dr. Gladys Morgan, of San Diego, directed the exhibition and tests.

Santa Barbara.—By a will written on a scrap of note paper in the handwriting of another person and signed with his mark, Jose Nunes Branquinho, deceased, has left to his widow, who is the mother of his ten children, a 160-acre ranch valued at $30,000 near Gary and $2706.70 worth of personal property. The will, which leaves the entire estate to the widow without restrictions, was filed by George Elliott, who seeks letters of administration.

Santa Cruz.—An automobile with four passengers turned a complete somersault and went over the bank near Felton, but not one of the passengers was injured. In the auto were W. J. Stone, Mrs. C. J. Barnard, O. R. Braun, Henry Braun and W. F. Jordan. The steering gear broke and although the emergency brake was applied, the momentum of the car as it went around the curve carried it over the bank. It turned a complete somersault and half way over again and landed against a big tree.

Lodi.—Cecil Haroldson is missing and his girl-wife is distracted. He left home on the morning of May 31, and has not been seen since. Haroldson, employed as a clerk in the Lodi Hardware Store, dressed with unusual care on the morning in question. In response to his wife's inquiry, he said something to the effect that he had a right to dress up once in a while and that he had to meet a customer at the store. He failed to appear at the place of business. He took all his money and valuables, but no baggage, as far as known.

San Jose.—Charles M. Kirkbride of San Francisco was chosen as president of the newly-formed Pacific Service Men's Association at their last meeting. A number of important matters in connection with the permanent organization of the new society were taken up. Steps were taken to ally the Pacific organization with the National Soldiers' Legion, now being formed. Lieutenant H. E. Browning of Palo Alto presided at the meeting. He was a sharpshooter in France and was very severely wounded in the throat last year. He is still in the army and may return to France. The remainder of the newly-elected cabinet is: Vice-president, R. S. Wright; secretary, George S. Sperry.

Tuolumne.—Following hard upon the discovery of the body of William Belltag, the butcher, in the West Side mill pond, and the further fact that a large sum of money he usually carried is missing, two Mexicans have been lodged in jail here on suspicion. The peace officers are not satisfied that Belltag's death was accidental and are working on the theory he was robbed and thrown into the pond, despite the verdict of the coroner's jury. It is declared he had $68 in silver the night of his disappearance, but when the body was found there was only $18 in the pockets. In addition, it is also asserted that $650 in $50 bills, which he habitually carried in a wallet strapped to his body, is missing.

COMMERCIAL PLANE TRIP A SUCCESS

Actual Flying Time Between Los Angeles and San Francisco 7 Hours and 21 Minutes

San Francisco.—Completing the first trip to be made by a commercial airplane between Los Angeles and San Francisco, the Canadian Curtis model plane "A" of the Mercury Aviation Company, carrying Aviator Al Wilson and William W McKeighan, a Los Angeles delegate to the California State Hotel Association in session at Oakland, landed at the Marina Friday, June 13, at 2:36 o'clock.

Virtually the entire journey was made in the face of a thirty-five mile wind, which cut the usual speed of the plane—formerly used in Canadian aviation instruction and in reconnoissance work—from ninety miles an hour to slightly less than sixty miles. The 400 miles were covered in an actual flying time of seven hours and twenty-one minutes.

McKeighan reported that the trip, which was his first venture in the air, had been accomplished without mishap, although a number of air pockets were encountered in crossing the Tehachapi mountains and caused the plane to drop abruptly several times.

"The only other time during the trip when I wondered just what was happening," McKeighan said, "was when Wilson stopped the motor about 3 o'clock in the afternoon and, reaching over, tapped me on the shoulder. But it was all right, for he produced a half-chicken and some cake for me, and taking another half chicken himself, placed the steering apparatus between his knees while we had what was my first meal in the air at an elevation of about 7000 feet. It was surprising to me how hungry one gets up there and the meal was certainly welcome."

Leaving Hollywood at 11:30 a. m. Thursday, stops were made at Bakersfield at 1:30 p. m., and at Fresno at 4:30 p. m., where the party stopped over night. The start was made Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock, with a stop in Modesto at 11:50 for gasoline.

While in Fresno, McKeighan took off his helmet and laid it aside while drinking at a street fountain. Someone carried it away as a souvenir and he was forced to make the remainder of the trip with a knit helmet only. When he arrived here Friday afternoon his head was so cold he was partially unable to hear for several minutes. Aside from the journey over the Tehachapi mountains, the last few minutes over San Francisco at an elevation of 7000 feet was the coldest weather encountered during the trip, McKeighan said.

Aviator Wilson said he was lost in the clouds over San Francisco for a few minutes before he could sight Oakland through a break in the clouds beneath him and located himself to circle to San Francisco. He arrived, however, three minutes ahead of the time he estimated in a telegram sent Kenneth McGaffey, traffic manager of the company, who was in San Francisco to witness the completion of the trip.

On the arrival of the plane, McGaffey announced that the Mercury Aviation Company, which is headed by Cecil B. de Mille and is the pioneer commercial company of its kind organized in America, preceding the formation of a company operating a line between New York city and Atlantic City by three weeks, would hereafter make trips between Los Angeles and San Francisco as the demand warranted.

Regular trips between Los Angeles, Bakersfield and Fresno have been made by the company for some time, he said, and the use made of the five planes of the company has led to the purchase of a twelve-passenger plane which will be available for San Francisco trips after August 1.

The new plane will have a seventy-five foot spread across the wings and will have a speed of 100 miles an hour, he said.

State Senator Dwight H. Hart, part owner of a Los Angeles hotel, who first arranged the trip for himself and later had to abandon it because of his 250-pound weight, was among the small group that witnessed the completion of the flight.

BANDIT SHOT IN N. Y. BY AGED MESSENGER

New York.—The alertness of David Ryan, an elderly bank messenger, who pursued six hold-up men down the stairway of an uptown Manhattan Elevated station and felled one of them with a revolver shot, frustrated a daring attempt at daylight robbery here June 13. The robber who was shot was fleeing with a bag said to have contained $100,000 in securities taken from Ryan and Henry Boylan, employes of the Colonial Bank, who were taking the funds to the Federal Reserve Bank.

The robbers had pressed a wad of cotton saturated with chloroform to Boylan's face, while Ryan was stunned with a blow from a blackjack. However, as the thugs ran toward the street Ryan followed them and fired four shots at the group. The man with the bag collapsed, releasing his hold on it, and while his companions were carrying him to a waiting automobile Ryan retrieved the valuables.

16-HOUR NON-STOP TRIP OVER ATLANTIC

Airmen Battle Fog and Rains Over Sea but Land Unhurt and Happy on Coast of Ireland

London.—The final goal of all the ambitions which flying men have ventured to dream since the Wright brothers first rose from the earth in a heavier-than-air machine was realized Sunday morning when the young British officers, Captain John Alcock and Lieutenant Arthur Brown, landed on the Irish coast after the first non-stop flight across the Atlantic.

Their voyage was without accident and without unforeseen incident, so far as can be learned. It was a straightaway, clean-cut flight, achieved in 16 hours and 12 minutes—from Newfoundland to Clifden, Ireland, more than 1900 miles.

But the brief and modest description which comes from the airmen at Clifden tells of an adventurous and amazingly hazardous enterprise. Fog and mists hung over the north Atlantic and the Vickers-Vimy biplane climbed and dove, struggling to extricate herself from the folds of the airplane's worst enemy.

She rose to 11,000 feet, swooped down almost to the surface of the sea, and at times the two navigators found themselves flying upside down only ten feet above the water.

Before coming to earth near the Clifden wireless station, Alcock circled the wireless aerials, seeking the best spot. But no suitable ground was found, so he chanced it in a bog.

The wireless staff rushed to the aid of the aviators. They found Brown dazed and Alcock temporarily deafened by the force of the impact. As soon as they were able to be escorted to the wireless station they telegraphed the news to their friends; then had breakfast.

"That is the best way to cross the Atlantic," said Lieutenant Brown after he had eaten.

The landing was made at 9:40 o'clock, British summer time. In taking the ground the machine struck heavily and the fuselage plowed into the sand. Neither of the occupants was injured.

Much of the flight was made through a fog, with an occasional drizzle. This hampered the airmen considerably.

Captain Alcock explained the silence of his radio instrument during the trip by saying that the wireless propeller blew off soon after the airplane left Newfoundland.

"We were much jammed by strong wireless signals not intended for us," he added.

SING KEE, U. S. WAR HERO, GETS WELCOME

San Francisco.—Sing Kee, Chinese war hero, decorated for bravery and idol of his countrymen in America, arrived at the Ferry at 2:30 p. m. June 13.

First to greet him as he stepped off the Ferry apron was Dr. Chao Hain Chu, Chinese consul-general of San Francisco.

A reception committee consisting of Fink Ho, Leong Kow, Q. S. Quan and D. Y. Chan, prominent members of the Chinatown Parlor of Native Sons, greeted Sing Kee, acclaiming him as a distinguished fellow-member, and forming an escort of honor from this city to San Jose.

There were brief exchanges of felicitation in the flowery fashion of the Orient, more terse but none the less cordial salutations from Caucasian friends of the arriving hero. Among the latter were Jay McCabe and John McAuliffe, prominent business men of San Jose. The party, after being photographed and interviewed by local news men, American and Chinese, entered a big automobile and started for San Jose—Sing Kee's home town.

Then there was handshaking and greeting from his fellow members of the Chinese Native Sons.

Representatives of the Six Companies were also scheduled to participate in the ovation to Sing Kee at the Ferry. There were brief speeches of congratulation from prominent local Chinese and then Sing Kee was bundled into a big auto for a quick trip to San Jose—his home town.

S. F. MAN FLEECED OUT OF $15,000 IN COPPER DEAL

Chicago.—Warner Roehl of San Francisco reported to the police June 13 that he had been swindled out of $15,000 by two confidence men in a copper proposition at Madison, Wisconsin.

Roehl said that the two men whom he met in Chicago induced him to go into a copper deal which he said was to be handled through Madison. He said he returned to California to get $15,000, his share of the investment; that the two men met him on the Coast and started back East with him and Mrs. Roehl. Somewhere on the trip to Chicago the two men left the train, taking the $15,000. They had told Roehl, he said, that his earnings in the Madison deal already were $83,000.

THE LINDENS

The lindens step so gently up the hill,
Like leisured, stately dames of long ago,
Waiving their fan-leaved branches to and fro.
They gossip of the rushes and the rill,
Whether the breeze has paid the rose's bill
For perfumes which he lavished on a bee,
And if the linnet in the locust tree
Thrills love songs to the pink or daffodil.

And when the silver moon slips slowly by
To keep her tryst with some awaiting cloud
Their green procession heaves an envious sigh
And vows she isn't maidenly or proud.
And when it grows too dark to spy or peep,
The lindens softly yawn and go to sleep.

—Charlotte Becker.

Suspicious Toughness.

"Waiter," said a diner in a country restaurant, "this chicken is very tough."

"Very sorry, sir; but you see that chicken was a peculiar bird. Why, when we came to kill it, we couldn't catch it. It flew up on top of the barn and we had to shoot it."

"Are you sure you didn't shoot the weathercock by mistake?"

Animals Display Great Intelligence When Ill or Hurt—Treat Themselves

Few people realize, notes a writer in the Christian Herald, how many animals are constantly getting hurt and sick. The wild animals seldom get sick from what they eat, but the domestic animals frequently do. Wild animals get injured from fighting with other animals of their kind or in fights with animal enemies. In all cases, animals have a way of doctoring themselves that is remarkable.

Animals suffering from fever eat nothing, keep quiet, seek darkness and airy places, drink much water and sometimes plunge into the water from time to time. When a dog has lost its appetite it eats that species of grass known as "dog's grass." Cats also eat grass, catnip, etc., when sick. Sheep and cows in the same circumstances seek out certain wild plants.

If an ant's foot is cut, other ants will cover the wounded part with a transparent fluid from their mouths. If a chimpanzee is wounded it stops the flow of blood by placing its hand on the wound or dressing it with leaves and grass.

A terrier had an injured eye. It remained lying under a counter, avoiding heat and light, although it had been its habit to keep close to the fire. It adopted the general treatment—rest and abstinence from food. The local treatment consisted in licking the upper surface of its paw, which it then applied to the wounded eye, again licking the paw when it became dry. Cats, when hurt, also treat themselves by this simple method.

The methods adopted by most of the wild animals for doctoring themselves are unknown to man, but there is no doubt that every animal has the ability to skilfully doctor itself.

Our Ancient Ancestors Dwelt in Icy Period Is Proven by a Discovery

One often hears of "the glacial period" or "the ice age" of the earth, but, strictly speaking, this expression is not correct, avers a writer. It is now established beyond all reasonable doubt that this planet has experienced not one but a great many glacial periods. Evidence has been found which proves that the latest or Pleistocene glacial epoch has several important subdivisions and that all of the present continents have experienced glacial epochs at different ages.

Great ice sheets were formed at different periods back to the Proterozoic age; that is the age of the oldest known sedimentary rocks, a great many million years ago.

One of the most recent discoveries of the old glacial deposits was made by Professor W. W. Atwood of the United States geological survey, near Ridgway, in southwestern Colorado. These deposits were found beneath tertiary lavas of the San Juan mountains, and resting upon upper Cretaceous beds. They have, it is believed, been formed in early Eocene times.

CALOMEL TODAY, SICK TOMORROW

Dose of nasty calomel makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.—Adv.

Catch Trout in Your Hands

"Then, at Will's suggestion, they started after more provisions," writes Samuel Scoville, Jr., in his serial "Boy Scouts in the Wilderness," of which the second installment appears in the May number of Boys' Life. "Joe taught Will one of the simplest ways of catching fish. They walked up the main brook toward its source, until they met a little stream flowing into it from a nearby spring. This they followed, the trout darting ahead of them. At a narrow part of this stream the boys walled in a pool with piles of stone and small rocks.

"This pool they filled up with flat stones until the water in it was only a few inches deep, building up the sides, however, until they were fully a foot above the water. Then, making a detour away from the brook, they came out some fifty yards above this fish-trap. Stepping into the brook both boys waded with a stick in each hand, splashing the water and driving the fish down-stream. By the time they reached the shallow, walled-in pool it was packed to overflowing with plunging, darting trout from four to six inches long. So thickly were the fish jammed into the shallow water that all the boys had to do was to wade in and catch as many as they needed with their hands, and even had a hundred or so small trout."

Sciences.

"I suppose you understand the science of government?"

"To be frank," replied Senator Sorghum, "I'm not as strong on the science of government as I ought to be. I have meant to take it up, but I have been tied right down to my studies in the science of how to get re-elected."

Indomitable Satisfaction.

"What kind of luck have you had with your car?"

"Fine," replied Mr. Chuggins.

"But it must give you trouble sometimes."

"No. When it's running we enjoy the travel and when it isn't we're saving gasoline."

Advantage of Learning.

Parent—Maria, what was you and young Gassam doin' last night when your little brother caught you?

Clever Maid—Nothing, pa, except quietly discussing practical experimentation of osculatory theories.

Parent—And that precious young rascal told me he was a-kissin' you!

He—Madam, I intend to be boss in my own house.

She—Well, you know where good intentions go to, don't you?

Hurrah! How's This
Cincinnati authority says corns dry up and lift out with fingers.

Ouch ! ? ! ? ! ! This kind of rough talk will be heard less here in town if people troubled with corns will follow the simple advice of this Cincinnati authority, who claims that a few drops of a drug called freezone when applied to a tender, aching corn or hardened callus stops soreness at once, and soon the corn or callus dries up and lifts right off without pain.

He says freezone dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding skin. A small bottle of freezone will cost very little at any drug store, but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Millions of American women will welcome this announcement since the inauguration of the high heels. If your druggist doesn't have freezone tell him to order a small bottle for you.—Adv.

Cincinnati Reds Get Two in One When Slim Sallee Is Taken From New York

Sometimes when a ball club signs some particular player it really gets the equivalent of two athletes b; a simple mathematical process, adding one man to its own roster and removing one from some other club—a fellow who has been special poison to the team. For instance, the signing by the Cincinnati Reds of Slim Sallee. In acquiring Sal the Reds get a good left-hander—one of the best of them all in his day, and with probably another good season in his composition. But, besides adding a southpaw to the club, the Reds remove from the New York team a man who was arsenic and prussic acid to the Cincinnati club—a pitcher who could always beat Cincinnati and was sure to take at least five or six games away from the Reds each summer.

Mother's Cook Book.

The art of cooking cannot be learned out of a book any more than the art of swimming or the art of painting. The best teacher is practice; the best guide sentiment.

Seasonable Food for the Family.

A dainty breakfast or any other meal well served with a few well-prepared dishes is of far more value to the family than the mere food as nutrition; a good meal has a moral influence which we often fail to appreciate.

Fillet of Beef With Vegetables.

Wipe a three-pound fillet of beef and brown in a hot frying pan in hot drippings; when the entire surface is seared over, turn occasionally, cooking for thirty minutes. Remove the meat to a serving dish and garnish with a cupful each of cooked peas and carrots, the carrots cut in fancy shapes and well seasoned; add one-half pound of mushrooms sauted in a little butter for five minutes and serve with Mushroom Sauce.

Take one-fourth of a cupful of fat, add five tablespoonfuls of flour and stir until well browned; add a cupful of soup stock, a third of a cupful of mushroom liquor and half a pound of mushrooms cut in pieces and cooked in butter five minutes. Season with salt, pepper, and just before serving add a little more of the fat left from the frying pan. To obtain mushroom liquor cook the stems of the mushrooms in cold water to cover and reduce to a third of a cup.

Apricot Shortcake.

Prepare a rich biscuit dough, roll out rather thin, butter and place in two layers with the butter between. When the cake is baked it will split easily. Cover the shortcake when baked with stewed and slightly thickened apricots and juice. A little butter spread on the cake adds to its flavor.

Rice With Bananas.

Peel and scrape three ripe bananas and mash them until creamy, adding a few drops of lemon juice. Stir this lightly into cold, cooked rice and serve with sweetened cream. This is a dessert especially liked by the little people.

Savory Toast.

Chicken gravy poured over buttered toast makes a nice supper dish or good for luncheon. Served with a crisp salad and a cup of cocoa one has a fine meal.

Another dish similar to the above is a white sauce with chopped hard cooked eggs, poured over toast. The eggs may be leftovers from breakfast.

Date Salad.

Arrange stoned dates cut in quarters on lettuce with a small spoonful of mayonnaise in the center, with the dates forming rays like the petals of a flower. This is a salad which the children will be allowed to eat.

THE MAKING OF A FAMOUS MEDICINE

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Is Prepared For Woman's Use.

A visit to the laboratory where this successful remedy is made impresses even the casual looker-on with the reliability, accuracy, skill and cleanliness which attends the making of this great medicine for woman's ills.

Over 350,000 pounds of various herbs are used anually and all have to be gathered at the season of the year when their natural juices and medicinal substances are at their best.

The most successful solvents are used to extract the medicinal properties from these herbs.

Every utensil and tank that comes in contact with the medicine is sterilized and as a final precaution in cleanliness the medicine is pasteurized and sealed in sterile bottles.

It is the wonderful combination of roots and herbs, together with the skill and care used in its preparation which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ills.

The letters from women who have been restored to health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which we are continually publishing attest to its virtue.

FAITH

I would not see too clearly;
I love the purple haze
That softly veils the distance,
And beauty gives my gaze—
That leaves to Fancy's limning
The things I'd like to see,
My fondest hopes undimming
By what can never be.

I would not see too clearly—
No prying thought would thrust;
Whatever holds the future
Let my poor heart yet trust.
Love I a friend unduly,
I would not know his lack;
If I still love him truly—
My love may win him back.

I would not see too clearly;
Contented with what seems
Let me keep life's illusion,
The beauty of my dreams.
Suspicion of the seeming
What good can ever do?
Oft if we trust our dreaming
Faith makes the dream come true.

Huns Quit in Nick of Time

It now develops that the gas invented by Uncle Sam to sprinkle upon the Hun trenches would have soon ended hostilities had the armistice not been declared. Powerful airplanes capable of carrying many tons of this gas were in readiness. It is said that one whiff of this gas meant instant death by strangulation of the heart, and that one small container when broken meant death to everyone within a distance of twenty-five or thirty feet. It is estimated that one ton of this gas, if diffused with precision, would kill every human being in Contra Costa county. When we consider that we had planes capable of carrying 12 tons of this deadly gas, which would have undoubtedly been scattered over the entire German empire, the Huns must have had a "hunch" that a surprise was in store for them, and were more than willing to quit.

This gas was invented by an American under the direction of the General Electric Co., near Cleveland, Ohio. The gas is called Methyl. Its composition is a secret nown only to a few.

Union Label Should Be Encouraged

Those engaged in mechanical lines, such as building trades, or the manufacture, repair or selling of any useful articles of merchandise, should see that their printing bears the union label.

The union label is a pretty sure guarantee that the printerman is competent and can deliver—that he is in business permanently and substantially, and has credentials to prove that he is an authorized workman and has served his apprenticeship.

A novice who inhabits a "hole in the wall," with his amateur outfit, with no union label, no credentials to prove that he ever "passed muster" as a printer, is not entitled to the patronage of organized labor, nor should he be recognized as a legitimate competitor by the merchant who depends upon organized workingmen for his support.

Richmond is said to be 100 per cent union. A Richmond business card without the union label is like a preacher without a congregation—it talks to empty seats.

Couldn't Fool His Wife

It was the first night performance of the season, and at the end of the first act a man leaped hurriedly to his feet.

"I heard an alarm of fire," he said to his wife. "I must go and see where it is."

It happened that her hearing was less accute and she made way for him in silence as he disappeared.

"It wasn't fire," he said, on his return.

"Nor water, either," said his wife coldly.—Ex.
